LiUNA Local 183 – RCCAO Deputation to Peel Regional Council Motion 20.1 - Motion Regarding Highway 413, Transitway and Transmission Corridor

My name is Jason Ottey, and I am the Director of Government Relations and Communication for LiUNA Local 183.

On behalf of Jack Oliveira, our Executive Board and our more than 65,000 members, I appreciate the opportunity to address you today on the important and transformational issue of transportation infrastructure in Ontario, particularly Highway 413.

LiUNA Local 183 is also part of broader coalition of construction stakeholders called the Residential and Civil Construction Alliance of Ontario that represents both labour and management stakeholders from the residential and civil construction sectors of Ontario.

Our primary focus is the importance of investing in core public works and critical infrastructure assets such as transit and water systems, roads, bridges and housing.

Our members, both labour and management (through the RCCA), help build and maintain most of Ontario's critical infrastructure that all of us rely on.

RCCAO membership includes the Greater Toronto Sewer and Watermain Contractors Association; Heavy Construction Association of Toronto; International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 793; Joint Residential Construction Association, LiUNA Local 183; Ontario Formwork Association; and Toronto and Area Road Builders Association.

LiUNA Local 183 and RCCAO supports Councilor Brown and Councilor Thompson's motion to rescind the Region of Peel's opposition to Highway 413. We believe that this is a pragmatic approach for the future of the region, its residents and the region's long-term economic competitiveness.

As reflected by the June provincial elections, the majority of the province voted to build Highway 413 and critical infrastructure. This support will meet the needs of our growing province, keeping people and goods moving across Ontario.

The provincial election results reflect research that LiUNA OPDC commissioned in May, which revealed that 54% of Ontarians support the building of Highway 413.

Along with the fact that all twelve seats in Peel Region elected Progress Conservative candidates that campaigned on a platform that included clear intention to build Highway 413, it is abundantly evident that Ontarians want the highway to be build and understand its importance to the region and province's long-term prosperity.

The GTA is among the fastest growing regions in North America and expects to welcome an additional 2.8 million people over the next 25 years, with 58% of that population growth destined for Peel, York and Halton regions.

This growth will increase demand for critical infrastructure on everything from water, housing, transit systems, highways and roads. That is why Highway 413 must proceed and create transportation infrastructure for Brampton and Ontario's future.

Highway 413 is of vital importance in terms of reducing congestion, fostering economic recovery and long-term competitiveness, improving connectivity, supporting housing initiatives, and facilitating job creation.

Highway 413 is infrastructure for the future. It not only being proposed with consideration for future population growth, but also with innovative elements such as AV and EV technologies as well as incorporating public transit into its design.

The highway is being proposed with a transitway that will run alongside it and be dedicated exclusively for public transit, such as buses and light rail. This sort of mix of transit and transportation infrastructure in one project is commendable and forward-thinking.

Our highways and transit must work together. It is not an either, or scenario. Given the geographical nature of Ontario and the region, we will always need roads for vehicles – whether they be gas-powered or electric.

As Canada pledges to transition to all new cars and light-duty trucks being zero emission by 2035, this will add a new perspective to the role that highways and roads will play. They will become important facilitators and enablers of environmental stewardship, which is reflected in the planning of Highway 413 as it is being designed with significant EV-related infrastructure in place and considerations for AV technology.

There will always be a need for highways and roads to facilitate the movement of people and goods in the region.

Roads and highways are also essential infrastructure for the movement of goods across Ontario, which is the backbone for local and regional economies.

Demand for goods has reached historic levels, especially during the pandemic, and that demand is only projected to increase as both as e-commerce takes firm hold and as the population of the region continues to grow.

Building and maintaining road infrastructure increases business productivity by reducing time and cost of transporting goods and allowing products to move efficiently through the supply chain.

The construction of transportation infrastructure also brings significant economic opportunities. A recently commissioned RCCAO jobs and economic impact report found that building Highway 413 will create up to 8,000 jobs a year during construction, generate $2.3 billion in earnings for Ontario workers, create up to 600 apprenticeship, and produce $906 million in tax revenue.

Thus, we urge City Council to adopt this motion and consider the benefits of critical infrastructure like Highway 413 and the opportunities it would provide now and in the long-term.

Thank you for your attention.
